Asks Congress For Spending Controls

President's Budget Shows $52 Billion Deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Predicting a turnaround by the end of 1976, President Ford today sent Congress a "$1 billion a day" budget and acknowledged that in the immediate future the nation can expect increased inflation, unemployment and the biggest spending deficit since World War II.

In his $349.4 billion budget outline for the fiscal year beginning July 1 and an accompanying economic report, Ford said he regretted that his proposals would mean record spending and a huge $52 billion deficit.

He also conceded that the figures in his budget analysis portend two years of 8 per cent unemployment and even sharper inflation in 1975.

"What they do not show," he said, "is that we will have turned the economy in a new and more favorable direction well before the end of this year." He indicated the turnaround would be achieved by the end of 1976.

In his economic report also sent to Congress today, Ford predicted that production will rise at more than 5 per cent between mid-1975 and the end of 1976.

"This will add some two million workers to the nation's payrolls over this period, so that unemployment—though still high—will be going down," he said.

The economic analysis in Ford's budget predicted that unemployment will hit 8.1 per cent at the end of this year and 7.9 per cent at the end of 1976—an potentially explosive number in a presidential election year.

Although consumer prices will go higher this year than last, Ford noted he expects the rate of increase to fall into the neighborhood of 7 per cent in 1976.

The overall inflation rate between December, 1974, and December, 1975, he said, will be "a little more than 9 per cent." He predicted about 2 percentage points of this will be due to high energy costs, much of it to be returned to the economy in the form of tax cuts.

The extraordinarily large deficit was due to low tax collections because of the recession and a dose of extra government spending designed to stimulate the sagging economy.

"I regret that my budget and tax proposals will mean bigger deficits temporarily, for I have always opposed deficits," Ford said during a weekend briefing.

In two years, Ford predicted, the United States would go $87 billion in the red and he said it could go higher if Congress does not follow his recommendations.

As proposed, the deficit would be the largest in peacetime and just shy of the record $54.8 billion deficit of wartime 1943.

Ford said a solution to the problems of recession, inflation and energy shortages requires prompt action by Congress and a willingness "to turn in a new direction."

"And from all Americans, we must ask for perseverance and a willingness to tolerate some painful measures necessary to regain good economic health," he said.

The facts and figures contained in the budget "present no rosy picture," he admitted. But, he said, "they forecast the real improvement we expect in the coming months."

Ford earlier acknowledged that he was proposing spending of nearly $1 billion a day and a deficit that would equal $1 billion a week in fiscal 1976.

Earlier in the day, Ford held a breakfast for Democratic and Republican congressional leaders to review the record budget and to urge them to support his requests for tax rebates and a long range energy program. He takes off for Atlanta this afternoon to generate public support for his program.

"This budget is designed to bring some of these so-called 'uncontrollable' programs back into line. I ask the Congress to work with me toward this objective."

He said the President and the Congress must act together to stimulate the economy and reduce the rate at which federal expenditures have been growing over the past 10 years.

Ford also praised outgoing Budget Director Roy Ash for staying until the 1976 budget requests were completed. He said he looked to Ash's successor, former HUD Secretary James T. Lynn, "to enhance further the capability of solid management so necessary to that office."

Personally previewing the budget for reporters last Saturday, Ford acknowledged that he wants the United States to spend almost a billion dollars a day beginning July 1, 1975.

"It's a big budget," he said, "calling for expenditures of $349 billion—almost $1 billion a day."

He said the deficit would be about $52 billion, but could rise to nearly $70 billion "if Congress does not agree to all of the reductions that I have requested." The government estimates it will spend $313.4 billion in this fiscal year.

Congressional leaders of both parties, invited to breakfast to discuss the budget, were offering a chilly reception to the proposals.

Atlanta was Ford's first stop today in his campaign to take the budget to the people if he cannot convince Congress to accept the proposed budget.

"I will walk the extra mile and give all of my strength to getting the national economy in shape," Ford said Saturday. "I will ask the Congress to walk that extra mile with me so that together we will lead the country with strength and purpose to a fuller life for all Americans."

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicted (on NBC's "Meet the Press") Sunday Congress would not accept reductions in social expenditures and increases in defense spending.

"The President has asked for some $17 billion in cutbacks and about $6 billion of that goes directly to the retired people and the low income people," he said. "It is highly doubtful that Congress will follow the President in that regard."

A number of administration proposals will be before Congress this week — Ford's tax cut, his surcharge on oil imports and a reduction in Food Stamp benefits. What happens will be a test of power—especially if Congress marshals enough votes to override a veto.

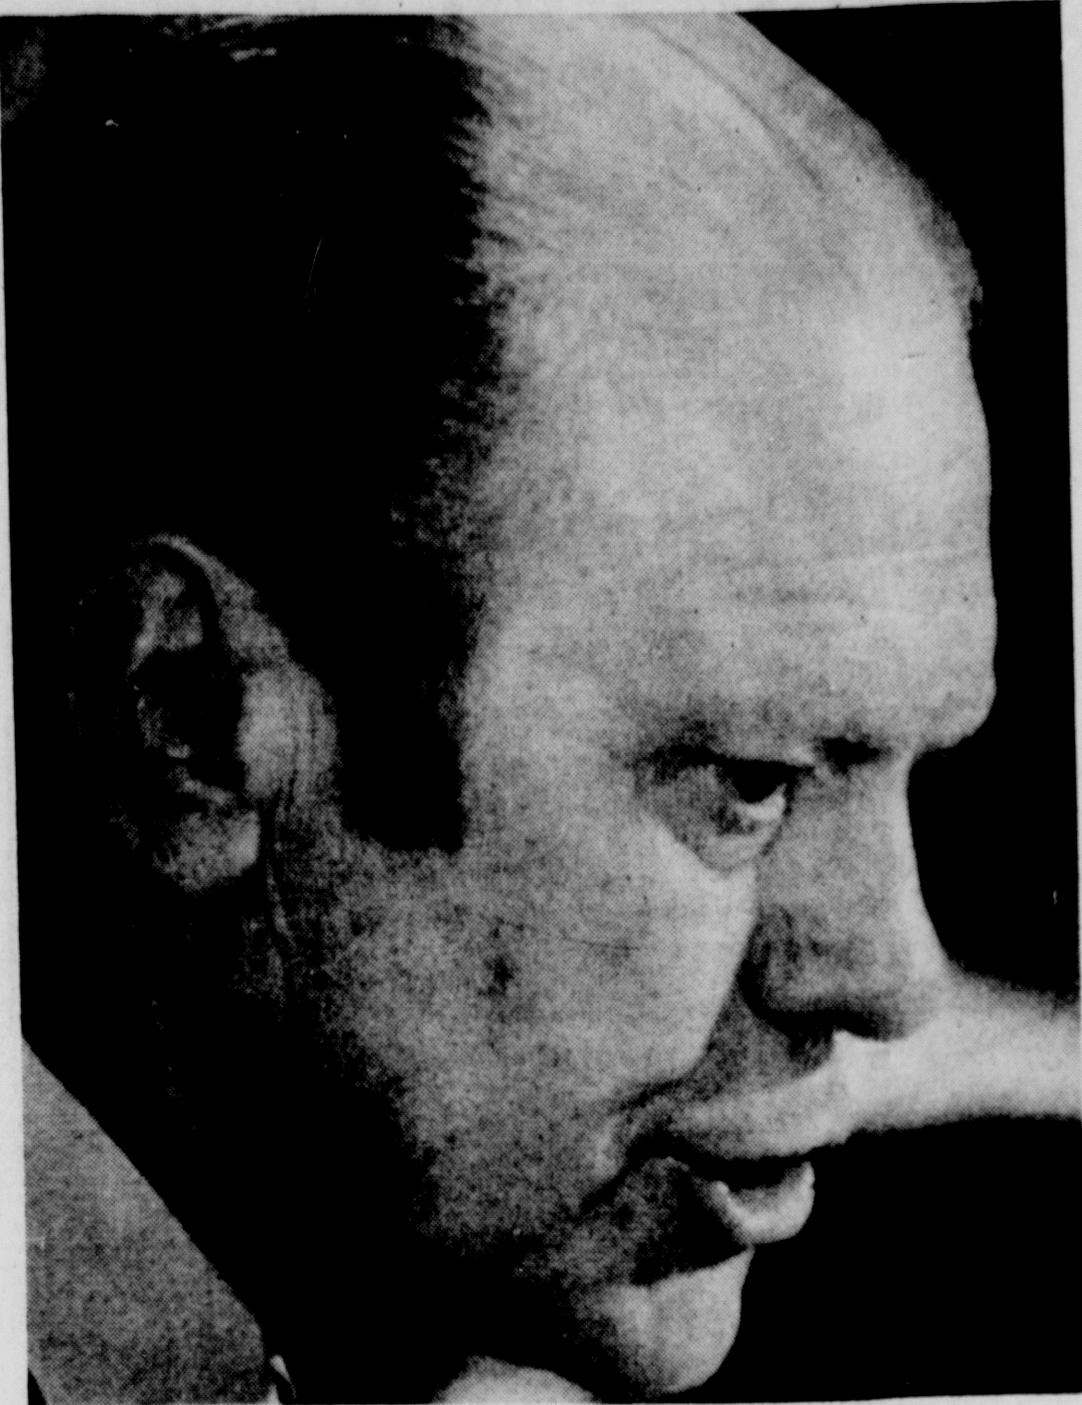

Ford's tax cut headed the list of measures before Ullman's committee today. The President is seeking $16 billion, including an across the board rebate on 1974 taxes. Ullman has a similar proposal, a $19 billion cut that would concentrate tax relief on low and middle income persons.

The first dollar of Ford's $3 oil import charge took effect Saturday. The House is expected to vote this week to delay it, adding the measure on a bill to increase the national debt limit from $495 billion to $531 billion. Ford says the additional money is needed to stimulate the economy and he has promised to veto a combined bill.

The House votes Tuesday on a bill to nullify the Agriculture Department order to cut food stamp benefits. Users now pay about 23 per cent of their income for the stamps, which allow 17 million-plus people to stretch their food budgets. The proposal would make food stamp expenditures about 30 per cent of income. The Senate Agriculture Committee meets Wednesday on an identical nullification bill.

The package was sent to Congress at noon.

PRESIDENT FORD GIVES THE 'BAD NEWS'

(UPI)

Solutions for Energy Reflected in Proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, gathering the search for foreign oil substitutes under a single tent—the new Energy Research and Development Administration—today proposed a record $4.3 billion three-agency budget to fight energy shortages.

The need to find new sources of energy is so critical, Ford said, that such efforts have been made the sole exception to his pledge for a one-year moratorium on new federal spending programs.

Ford asked Congress to spend $3.89 billion for ERDA, created in October and actually functioning only 15 days. It pulls together energy programs once managed by the Interior Department, the National Science Foundation, the Pentagon and the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission.

Ford requested $207.6 million for the Federal Energy Administration, the energy regulating agency. He asked $197.9 million for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the new agency that took over the AEC's power-reactor regulatory chores.

Reflecting the growing emphasis on long-term solutions to U.S. energy needs, Ford asked Congress to provide ERDA with $806 million more than the total energy research spending of the current fiscal year and $1.59 billion more than was spent last year.

The total $4.3 billion request represents a $945.3 million increase over comparable spending this year and a $1.8 billion—or 78 per cent—jump over the fiscal 1974 level.

More than half his request—$2.1 billion—was for research in fields ranging from tapping energy from the sun and the wind to taming the nuclear fusion process of the hydrogen bomb for generating electricity.

Ford today asked Congress to approve a $94 million defense budget—a 10 per cent increase over last year.

"The budget ... is a substantial one," Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger told a news conference. "We offer no apologies."

He said the money was needed "to fulfill American foreign policy and defense objectives."

Defense officials said that after discounting for increased costs caused by inflation, the defense budget would provide the same amount of buying power as last year. They said the administration would seek real buying power increases in future budgets, not just boosts to cover inflation.

"We must have a turnaround in this process which has resulted year after year in a chopping away of the real resources going to the Department of Defense," Schlesinger said.

Koenig Outlines Community Development

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Mayor Francis R. Koenig presented his administration's proposals on community development today listing as his top priority (in terms of dollars) the expenditure of $375,000 for interior and exterior reconstruction of the Municipal Auditorium on Broadway, converting it into a "Mid-town Neighborhood Center."

The mayor's priorities are outlined in legislation he is offering the Common Council for approval when it meets in regular session Tuesday night. Generally, Koenig's proposals follow priorities listed by the Community Development Advisory Council which made public its recommendations last Friday.

Koenig's priorities for 1975 funding under the Community Development Act include:

- $210,000—Broadway West Interim Assistance. "Acquisition and clearance of those properties identified as major blighting influences and that can prompt immediate reuse; begin redevelopment activity in accordance with plan."

- $125,000—Central Broadway Interim Assistance. "Acquisition and clearance of those properties and lands identified as major blighting influences and that can prompt an immediate reuse."

- $112,500—Rehabilitation of Water Trunk Lines. "Reconstruction and rehabilitation of 7,500 linear feet on Clinton Avenue—Washington Avenue (of) 16-inch trunk line water main."

- $100,000—Kingston Point Park. "Design and construction of outdoor recreational facilities to include field sports area, tennis courts, skating surface, basketball courts, etc."

Koenig said that plans for Kingston Point Park do not include a marina.

Koenig's message to the Council details both long and short range proposals under the $5.4 million Community Development program which earmarks $1,359,000 to Kingston during its first three years.

In terms of spending over the next two years, Broadway West gets the most money, $460,000, with Central Broadway and Kingston Point Park getting $200,000 each.

In asking the federal government for a 10 per cent "down payment" of $135,900, the first year, Koenig allocates $90,000 to set up an administrative office for planning the use of the money.

Alderman Brian D. Smith (R-Third Ward), the Common Council's minority leader, has criticized the mayor for spending the entire $135,900 on administration and staffing, contending that the city now has the staff (the city planner, engineer, et.) in its employ to carry out the new program. "We must use all these monies earmarked for programs, not for staffing and administrative rip-offs," Smith charged.

Koenig answers by noting only $90,000 is being used for administration, that the city will use its (present) manpower to the best extent possible, but contends that it would be "impossible" to administer the program unless there is additional staffing.

Editor's Note: The Freeman will detail specifics on Community Development Programs in a series of articles later this week.

Other than the mayor's community development proposals, the Common Council faces a light agenda. The aldermen are expected to approve Granada Builders Inc. of Port Ewen as re-developers of a shopping plaza in Broadway East. The Council meets at 7:30 p.m.

Two Cops Slay Each Other In Manhattan Shootout

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York City police officer and an off-duty Housing Authority officer Sunday killed each other in a gunbattle in midtown Manhattan. A second housing officer was wounded in the battle.

The dead policeman, Frank Bugdin, 38, was the fifth city cop killed in less than six weeks. The second victim was identified as Thomas Vodicka, 32, of the Housing Authority police.

Police said the two Housing Authority officers had been "socializing" together Saturday night and might have been drinking. They said the two had been seen in one of two bars in the Times Square area and that Vodicka had apparently fired two shots into the air earlier on a midtown street.

"We can't say they were drunk and we don't know yet exactly which bars they were in," a police spokesman said. "We know they were in at least one or two bars and they had been drinking."

At about 5 a.m., the spokesman said, Bugdin and his partner spotted the two men inside a taxi cab and approached the car with guns drawn.

When Bugdin opened the rear door of the cab, Vodicka fired at him, hitting him in the chest.

The two city policemen fired 12 shots into the cab, shattering two side windows and cracking the bullet-proof partition. Bugdin and Vodicka were pronounced dead on arrival at Bellevue Hospital.

The detective said the surviving housing officer, identified as John Corcoran, 32, was admitted to Bellevue Hospital for minor gunshot wounds.

President Ford's Budget Highlights

Federal Expenditures...1956 and 1976

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The portion of the federal budget spent for national defense has dropped dramatically in the past two decades while the percentage spent for health, education and other social uses has risen, according to President Ford's fiscal 1976 budget.

Income security payments, such as Social Security benefits, have more than doubled their proportion of the federal budget in that time, according to a table accompanying Ford's budget message.

Here is a comparison of the percentage of federal expenditures by function between Ford's proposed 1976 budget and the 1956 budget. The 1956 figures are in parentheses:

- National defense—26.9 per cent (56.4).
- International affairs—1.8 (3.4).
- General science, space and technology—1.3 (0.2).
- Natural resources, environment and energy—2.9 (1.5).
- Agriculture—0.5 (4.9).
- Commerce and transportation—3.9 (2.8).
- Community and regional development—1.7 (0.3).

- Education, manpower and social services—4.2 (0.8).
- Health—8.0 (0.5).
- Income security—34.0 (14.0).
- Veterans benefits and services—4.5 (7.1).
- Law enforcement and justice—0.9 (0.4).
- General government—0.9 (0.7).
- Revenue sharing and general purpose fiscal assistance—2.1 (0.1).
- Interest—9.9 (8.9).
- Allowances—2.3 (0).
- Undistributed offsetting receipts—5.8 (-2.1).

$1.2 Billion Going for Space Shuttle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than one-third of the fiscal 1976 budget President Ford sent to Congress today for the space agency will go to the revolutionary space shuttle rocket plane that is the key to the nation's future in orbit.

The proposed $3.5 billion National Aeronautics and Space Administration spending plan, up $291 million over fiscal 1975, also will keep preparations on schedule for July's joint Soviet-American spaceflight and the launch in August of two robots to search for life on Mars.

The space shuttle, a winged craft that will take off like a rocket and land like a jetliner, is to receive $1.2 billion—an increase of $400 million over the current year.

This, said NASA administrator James C. Fletcher, will keep the shuttle on schedule toward a maiden flight in mid-1979.

Budget cuts during the past two years forced delays in the shuttle timetable with resulting increases in the total cost of the project.

The NASA budget calls for no new programs, but does provide funds for a third earth resources surveying satellite now called Landsat. Congress asked for the satellite but the White House budget office earlier turned down requests to finance it.

Fletcher said the new budget is lean and will not keep pace with the current rate of inflation. He said if inflation continues high rates, some programs will have to be trimmed to keep within the spending plan.

Second Largest Deficit in U.S. History

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The $51.9 billion deficit President Ford foresees for fiscal year 1976 is the second largest in American history — overshadowed only by one year of World War II.

It will push the national debt to $606 billion—with one quarter of that debt accumulated since 1970.

The projected deficit exceeds the $47 billion deficits of war years 1944 and 1945 and comes within range of the biggest deficit in history—$54.9 in 1943.

Fiscal 1976 will mark the seventh consecutive year of deficit spending. The budget last showed a surplus in fiscal 1969 of $3.2 billion. One has to go back to fiscal 1957 to find another surplus—again $3.2 billion.

For the first 60 years of its history, from 1789 to 1849, the country accumulated a surplus of $70 million. In the next 50 years it ran up a $991 million deficit.

It wasn't until 1918 that any one year showed a deficit in the billions rather than the mere millions. But that 1918 deficit was a whopper for the times—$9 billion. It wasn't until 1927 that the country had its first billion dollar surplus—$1.155 billion.

Measured one way, however, federal spending is hold steady. As a fraction of the value of national output—Gross National Product (GNP)—the federal budget has ranged between 18 and 22 per cent since 1954, when it was 19.6 of GNP. In fiscal 1976, which begins July 1, it will be 21.9 per cent of GNP.

Funds for Appalachia in Proposed Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress today to approve $340 million for regional development aid to Appalachia in fiscal 1976, and to give states a greater role in choosing programs to be financed.

The funds, administered by the Appalachian Regional Commission, would equal the estimated FY 1975 outlay.

"In 1976, Appalachia regional development programs will continue to undergo changes designed to provide greater flexibility in meeting the diverse problems of Appalachia," the budget report said.

It added that fiscal resources "will be concentrated on the overall economic development objectives of the region."

Included in the Appalachian region is the entire state of West Virginia, and parts of Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, and New York.

The ARC is a federal-state partnership which funnels federal money to the states and oversees the programs.

Dyson Considered For Carey Cabinet

By HUGH REYNOLDS

ALBANY
John S. Dyson, "the kid" who ran for Congress in 1968 at the age of 24 and who has been on the fringe of public affairs ever since, may have finally found a (political) home.

Reports emanating from the State Capitol indicate Dyson has been or shortly will be named Gov. Carey's commissioner of Agriculture and Markets.

The governor's public relations people refuse to confirm or deny the report, suggesting that not only has a final decision not been made but that there are several people still in the running for the $42,475 a year post.

Dyson, seldom at a loss for words during his campaign against Hamilton Fish Jr. in 1968 and a local party spokesman on any number of issues since, turns out to be somewhat discreet when the topic concerns John S. Dyson directly. He said he'd rather not talk about it.

His aides are somewhat more enlightening. "In the new language of deep throat (of Watergate fame), confided a source very close to

Dyson, "If you go with something similar (to what was reported in an Albany newspaper last week) you wouldn't be incorrect."

Another aide confirms that Dyson has actively campaigned for the job to the exclusion, apparently of any others. "That was absolutely the only job that he wanted," a source told the Freeman. "He wasn't interested in anything else."

Dyson's interest in the Department of Agriculture and Markets isn't clear although that agency does concern itself with a number of consumer-oriented activities—such as labels on packages—and Dyson has spoken out on consumerism.

In any event, it could serve as a platform for a man whose political ambitions have been grist for local pundits ever since his narrow defeat at the hands of Fish some six years ago.

Actually, Dyson hasn't run for anything since, except for delegate to the Democratic National (mini-convention) in Kansas City last fall. He lost that one, because, as an aide put it, "we didn't really put much effort into it. We only spent a few thousand."

Dyson started out "Campaign '74" as a supporter of Howard Samuels but somehow managed the shift to Carey without any apparent loss of prestige.

Just what Dyson contributed to the Carey campaign isn't clear either—an aide suggests that "he worked on some position papers"—but in any event, the best information indicates John Dyson should be (officially) joining the governor's cabinet within the next few days.

Name County Probation Officer

KINGSTON

The five-month search for a new director of probation for Ulster County has been concluded with the appointment of Stephen E. Morris of Staten Island to the post, according to announcement made today by Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago.

Morris, a former director of training and staff development in the New York City Department of Probation, fills a vacancy created by the resignation last August of former director Charles Schultz who served the county 19 years. In the interim, a state probation consultant, Kenneth Fogarty, served here on a temporary consulting basis as acting director.

A graduate of Wagner College with a masters degree from the School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany, Morris, in addition to the New York City probation post he held since 1971, has also served as executive assistant to the deputy director of the Office of Probation for the Courts of New York City. His probation experience and training dates back to 1963.

As an undergraduate he was awarded a New York State Regents College scholarship and as a graduate was awarded one of 50 U.S. Department of Justice executive development scholarships.

Speaking at a press conference today, Morris said that an effective and efficient probation program can do much to reduce the cost of operating the justice system, while maintaining the same level of public safety or even improving it. He suggested it can be accomplished in two ways.

"First, the Court receives better quality information to use in making certain decisions and second, it is far more expensive to confine an offender than to keep that person in the community. An effective probation program makes it possible for more offenders to be safely maintained in the community," he said.

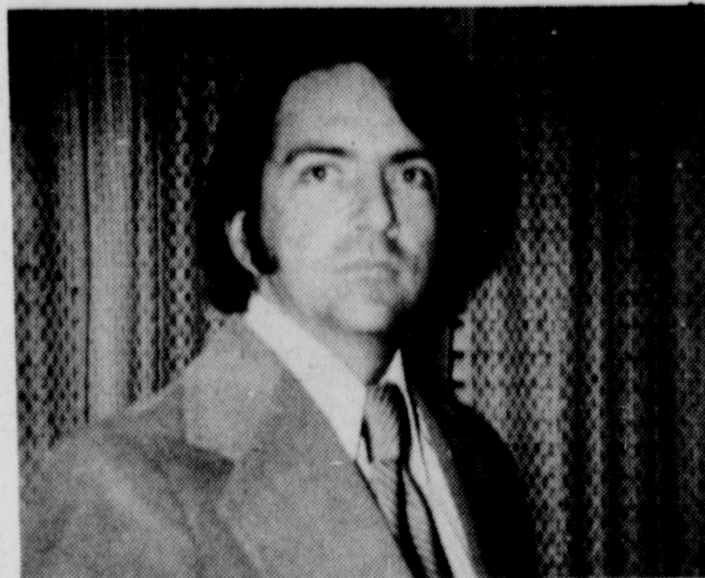

Morris also feels that in bringing probation services to the court and community, a variety of approaches have and will be used.

He said that to supplement the work being done by probation officers, there are opportunities for para-professionals, volunteers and concerned citizens in addressing the range of economic, social and personal problems that beset the people referred to court.

Morris, who will be on the job this month told of the department having several programs and that it will be developing more in the future. These programs are related to probation's responsibility for providing auxiliary services to the courts.

The new director holds membership in the National Organization Development network, the New York City Interagency Training Council and the Middle Atlantic State Conference on Corrections.

Mrs. Quick Won't Run

KINGSTON

After only one two-year term as vice chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee, Mrs. Kaye Quick announced today that she "could not commit herself to serve another term under the present chairman Harold Brown."

Declining to seek re-election, Mrs. Quick said that since assuming the vice chairmanship, she has tried to serve her party diligently and in a constructive manner, "only to have my efforts frustrated and undermined by Brown in his zeal to forcefully impose his will upon all aspects of our party."

Mrs. Quick, noting that Brown is being challenged by County Legislator Louis M. Klein in his bid for re-election, said she was pleased that Klein had declared his candidacy with a commitment to re-open the party to all Democrats. She said that "while I would be pleased to serve as his vice chairman, I cannot commit myself to serve another term under Brown should he be re-elected."

In the interests of the Democratic Party, Mrs. Quick, an active party member for 22 years, said that "in fairness to other persons interested in the vice chairmanship who might want to oppose me, I have decided to announce, at this early date, my intention not to seek re-election."

Two years ago, Mrs. Quick defeated the incumbent vice chairman Mrs. Rose Hogan.

Today she said that her decision not to seek re-election in no way means that she intends to become inactive in the party but fully intends to continue her activity toward reforming the party and making it more responsible to the citizens of the county.

Carey's Budget

Governor Carey's proposal for a whopping $10.7 billion budget for New York State has been greeted with cries of anguish from both sides of the aisles. Republican lawmakers were quick to denounce the governor's request as regressive, and a hardship on the middle class, while even diehard Democrats were notable in their lack of enthusiasm.

The governor, citing parlous economic times as the reason for astronomical state expenditures, has adopted a hard, fiscal line in calling for increased taxation on all levels. Perhaps the most bitter proposal, at least the one which caused the most consternation, was Carey's plan for a 10 cents a gallon gasoline tax levy. The long suffering motorists of the state, already overburdened by oppressive gasoline prices, conceivably shuddered collectively at the thought. Though the governor expressed the hope that this additional state revenue would be siphoned back to localities as state aid, the pill appeared no sweeter to many.

Other salient features of Carey's requests were: raising taxes on wine, liquor, banks, corporations and persons with net incomes of more than $25,000 a year; including doctors, lawyers in the unincorporated business tax; and applying the 4 per cent sales tax to new items such as barber shops, golf courses, theaters and parking lots.

Carey also proposed stringent economies in the state's operation and called for either the outright abolition or drastic curtailment in many state agencies. In spite of this, however, the governor felt that an additional $8.06 million was required to support his spending program.

A Republican-controlled Senate and a Democrat-controlled Assembly now have more than two months to grapple with Governor Carey's budget. Expectedly in that time, compromise and paring of funds will be in order and such unpopular measures such as the gasoline tax will either be discarded completely or minimized. What can be learned, however, from Carey's first budget is that the man in the Governor's mansion is not afraid to shun the easy road and embrace an unpopular program. The days of wine and roses may truly be over.

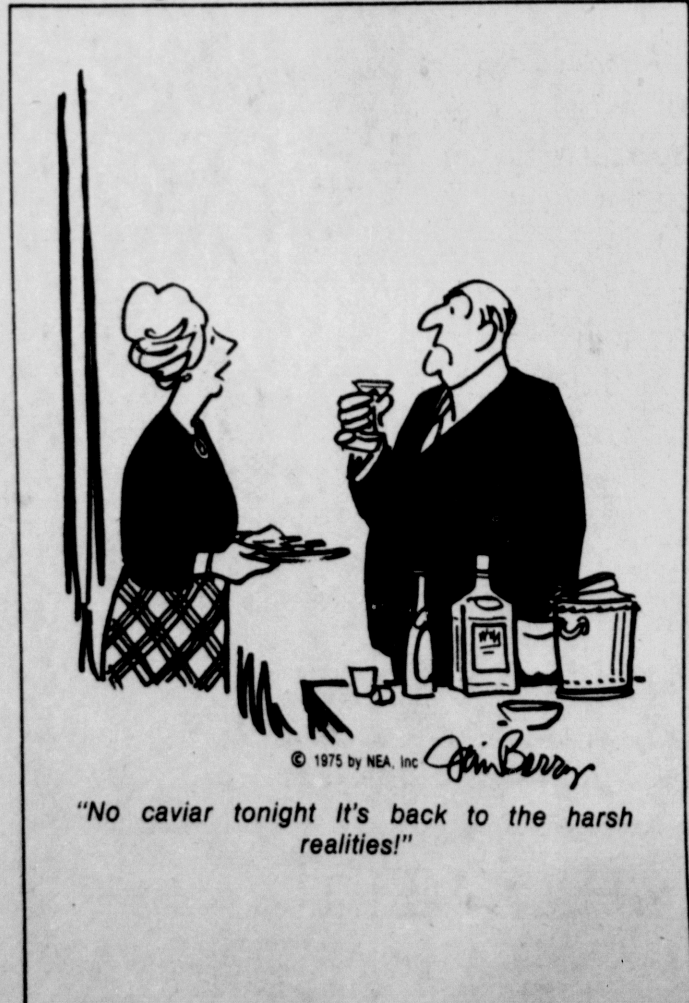

Detente Setback

Moscow's repudiation of the 1972 trade agreement with the United States has dealt a considerable blow to U.S.-Soviet relations. Though both Washington and Moscow have sought to put the best public face on matters, it is evident that detente has been weakened for the time being.

This was signaled when Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin was called to Moscow for a Kremlin review of the situation. The Soviet embassy's line was that Dobrynin was going home for a vacation, but newsmen learned that he had told Secretary of State Henry Kissinger there was to be a review of relations between the two countries.

Kissinger himself contributed to the feeling that a serious problem has been touched off, saying in an interview that detente has been "set back." While the Soviet government asserts that it is still interested in improved relations "in all spheres," fence-mending is in order if detente is to be maintained.

Berry's World

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten
WASHINGTON — When Gerald Ford tried to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas five years ago, Ford used secret data that had been slipped to him from the files of the FBI and probably the CIA.
Ford was then the House Republican leader, a loyal party man, who sometimes played a rough game of politics.

In 1969, President Nixon wanted to clean the liberals out of the Supreme Court so he could appoint conservatives in their places. With this in mind, his friend Ford began a campaign to get impeachment hearings going against Douglas.

For ammunition, Ford went to John Mitchell, who was then the attorney general. Mitchell agreed to put someone in contact with Ford.

Not long afterward, in December 1969, Asst. Atty. Gen. Will Wilson showed up at Ford's office with derogatory data about Douglas. It was based on secret intelligence reports developed by U.S. Agents in the United States and the Dominican Republic from 1956 to 1964.

One suggestion, wholly false, was that Douglas had ties with the Mafia. But the reports focused on a visit by Douglas to the inauguration of Dominican President Juan Bosch on Feb. 27, 1963.

Douglas was accompanied, the agents reported, by the head of a foundation paying Douglas $1,000 a month and by a lawyer "who had represented racketeers."

To hide the source, the information was typed on plain paper with no letterhead. Ford later borrowed entire sections from the smear sheets and used them almost verbatim in a virulent anti-Douglas speech, which he delivered on the House floor on April 15, 1970.

He fobbed off the speech as the fruit of his own investigation, with no mention of his behind-the-scenes dealings with Mitchell and Wilson.

A high Justice Department official, with direct knowledge of the case told us that most of the damaging data against Douglas came out of FBI files. Intelligence sources added that the details from the Dominican Republic were provided by the CIA.

We reached Wilson, who slipped the typed sheets to the President-to-be, in Austin, Tex. He told us that the Douglas material had been prepared from "general intelligence files," which he used to keep in the criminal division of the Justice Department.

When we pressed him, he acknowledged that the material "probably" came from the FBI, with portions "possibly" contributed by the CIA.

Footnote: Last month, Time magazine reported that Douglas had been a "target of CIA surveillance" in the 1960s "after he visited the Dominican Republic." Spokesmen for both the FBI and CIA refused any comment. The President has said he didn't know where Wilson got the material.

SEX SNOOPS: For years, we have been reporting on the snooping practices of the FBI, CIA, Secret Service and other government agencies. We have written dozens of columns laying out the facts that are now belatedly making front-page headlines.

As evidence that government gumshoes were abusing their investigative powers, our sources provided us with secret FBI files, CIA reports and Secret Service records on prominent Americans. Among them were members of Congress, black leaders, newsmen, movie stars and football heroes.

We have noticed that the government agents spend a great deal of time observing and reporting on the sexual adventures of a wide variety of noncriminal Americans. From the quantity and detail of information, we suspect there was as much voyeurism as sleuthing in the investigations.

Here are a few examples of what we mean:

— The Watergate wiretap transcripts, still sealed by the courts, are full of sex talk. What the White House wanted to know about the Democrats, apparently, was their sex secrets. The Waterbuggers bugged the only telephone that didn't go through the Democratic headquarters switchboard. The Democrats used this phone, therefore, to make their most intimate calls.

— One FBI report on a prominent black leader contained nothing but titillating tidbits about his sex life. It told, for example, about an incident with a woman in a New York City hotel. "(he) threatened to leap from the 13th floor window of the hotel," the FBI reported solemnly, "if this woman would not say she loved him."

— An FBI report on a football star states he "has been observed intoxicated on several occasions and also reportedly had an affair with an airline stewardess who became pregnant as a result of this association."

— In the file of a religious leader, the FBI has included the allegation that "he had illicit relations with an underage girl."

— A well-known writer, according to the FBI, "was evicted by the landlord for having homosexual parties."

— A famous movie star has this report in his FBI file: "The informant states that from personal knowledge he knew that (the actor) was a homosexual."

Yet the sex lives of celebrities, quite obviously, should be none of the government's business.

Inside Report

Lethargy in California Democrats

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The vagueness and lethargy among California Democrats in contemplating the party's presidential nomination 18 months hence was pointed up at the state Democratic convention here by these political oddities:

Oddity No. 1 — The only visiting presidential hopeful who generated enthusiasm or even briefly held the attention of delegates was former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, self-described "guerrilla-style candidate for President." But while cheering Harris's high-decibel polemics, the Democrats did not take him seriously. "We all hear Fred is running just to beef up his lecture fees," one national committeeman told us.

Oddity No. 2 — The possible candidate most frequently mentioned by delegates as California's favorite was not here and is not even running so far: Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana. Although Bayh has been out of national politics since he aborted his presidential campaign in 1974, California Democrats who rejected him last time volunteer interest this time.

Oddity No. 3 — The only Democrat with the financing, organization and national recognition in hand for a full-fledged campaign, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington was the only candidate passionately opposed here (though, like Bayh, he was absent).

When one party activist informed fellow delegates she was attending Jackson's fund-raiser in Los Angeles last Sunday night, she was reviled as "a sell-out artist."

The oddities can be explained. California Democrats, while liking no particular candidate, are always susceptible to anti-business diatribes delivered by so loud a voice as Fred Harris's. Massively unimpressed by active candidates, they scan the horizon for some acceptable liberal and find non-candidate Bayh. Meanwhile, ideological rigidity turns them against Jackson, his past advocacy of national defense obliterating all other questions.

Thus, there is no significant support for anybody in the nation's most populous state — a vacuum repeated throughout the country. State leaders here do not even attempt to guide followers. Nor can it be claimed that January 1975 is too early; at the state convention four years ago, supporters were lining up for Edmund Muskie and George McGovern.

Inattention to presidential politics reflects overall weariness. After years of internal bloodletting, delegates here seemed reluctant to get passionate about anything. What little energy they expended was devoted to contests for insignificant party offices (which predictably were won by the most liberal candidates).

No energy was left for the visiting presidential hopefuls. One prominent San Francisco Democrat told us he was interested in Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona ("because he's the most liberal") and was eager to hear his speech the next day. After that speech, we asked this leader his impression of Udall. "Dunno," he replied. "Never got there to hear it."

Those who did get to the convention floor spent more time gossiping than listening. Lackluster denunciations of President Ford's economic program by Udall, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania were nearly drowned out by chattering delegates. Harris made himself heard by speaking only six minutes and shouting neo-populist slogans into the microphone ("Most people in America think that the issue is privilege").

Udall was perhaps the biggest loser here. Wholly acceptable ideologically, Udall has a good chance to fill the vacuum on the left. Anxious to impress solemn California liberals, Udall repressed his famed sense of humor. The result was blandness without effectiveness. He made no converts.

Bentsen, starting a second year of national barnstorming with little to show for it, seemed tired by the same old questions and the same old answers. Carter was viewed as a curiosity — Southern liberal oozing with syrup-accented charm. Shapp's interminable economic attack on President Ford was a disastrous national debut. Jackson's coup was his staff's finding conflicting engagements that kept him from coming here.

The lethargy at Sacramento was broken only by Saturday's luncheon appearance of newly inaugurated Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. Having disavowed interest in Democratic party affairs, Brown was less involved in his party's convention than any governor this century. But his appearance at that luncheon provided the weekend's only excitement. Brown's tough, knowledgeable and essentially non-ideological theme that the taxpayers must get more out of their tax dollar contrasted with ho-hum liberal clichés by the presidential candidates.

Just beginning major public service, Jerry Brown at 36 scarcely seems a credible candidate for President. But it may take a fresh face with fresh formulations to break battle-weary boredom and force Democratic activists to focus seriously on 1976. The faces here, both of candidates and delegates, were anything but fresh and therefore were good reasons for Democratic concern.

The Big Con at Boca Raton

On the edge of New York Bay at the Battery, there was a man who sold a machine which made dollar bills. He turned a crank, and the currency kept coming out. He sold the machine for $500 and he seldom returned to the same place.

A good confidence man is an artist. He knows, as W.C. Fields did, that you can't cheat an honest man. The mark must have larceny in his blood. So, after grinding out about 40 one dollar bills, while a roll of blank paper fed itself into the back of the machine, the suckers were always persons who wanted to get something for nothing.

Of course, when they got home, the machine ground out nothing but blank paper. Nobody shrieks louder for police than a crook who has been cheated.

Long ago, Wilson Mizner and his brother Addison, scions of a fine California family, decided to swindle the larcenous. In 1898, they damn near froze to death in the middle of the Yukon gold rush. Wilson realized, after a look at the frozen tundra, that the odds against making a stake were prodigious.

So he bought a few small gold nuggets, salted them in a brook, staked a claim, and, in the presence of suckers, dug them up. He sold claim after claim, earning dishonest dollars from dishonest people.

John Burke, a good writer, revives all this in his book "Rogue's Progress." There are other, older books just as good, but I am fascinated with what Wilson called "class." Class, you see, is not snatching money; it's a means of forcing the sucker to beg you to take his money.

He once said, perhaps of himself, "He'd steal a hot stove and come back for the smoke." With logic, he explained that selling the Brooklyn Bridge to a naive farmer was not swindling, it was an education. "At least," he said, "the farmer won't buy another bridge."

In the mid-1920s, Addison and Wilson decided to join the Florida land boom. Both were tall, slender fops who enjoyed fleecing a group they referred to as the upper crust. So they bought a swamp south of Palm Beach and called it Boca Raton (Rat's Nest). Their dear friend was a stout comedienne named Marie Dressler.

They put her in on the ground floor for some lots, then used her name to sell others. They were so busy, Wilson said, "that seduction was at a standstill." Addison had one talent: he could design a Spanish mansion with orange tiles. His weakness was that some of the palatial homes had no bathrooms, and one had no staircase.

He reminded his customers, somewhat haughtily, that they didn't need a bathroom. A thunder-mug under the bed was good enough for their parents, etc. He remedied the lack of staircase by designing a turrent adjacent to the mansion, and built a spiral staircase around it.

The Kennedy mansion was built by the Mizners. For the Stotesburys of Philadelphia Addison built an enormous Spanish mansion that looked like the rail road terminal at Madrid. He forgot the bathrooms, but put in a garage for 40 cars.

Both were gaudily broke. Wilson said that Boca would build the broadest highway in the world, 20 lanes wide, called Camino Real. It was done, as he promised, but it only ran a mile and ended in a sandy lane. Still, money poured in and neither knew whether they were worth $10 million or $50 million.

Addison sweet-talked the Duchess of Richelieu into taking on the interior decorations at Boca Raton. With distaste, she asked him if Wilson had truly ever served time. "He must have," the brother said, "he has such an intimate knowledge of the plumbing."

For a time, they decided to build an ornate city hall as the hubcap of Boca, with streets stretching in spokes. One one would be all doctors; on another all judges and lawyers; on another all engineers, etc. Palm Beach, they said, was through. It would become the servants' entrance to Boca.

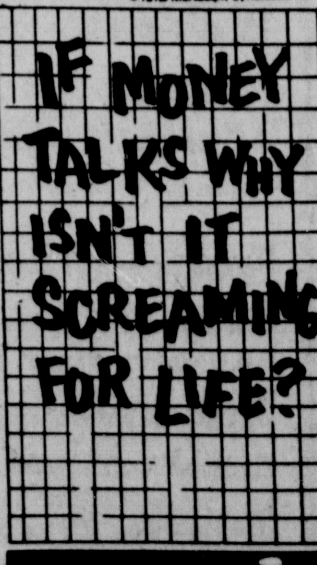

Among their customers were the DuPonts, the Singers, Vanderbilts, James M. Cox, Lady Diana Manners and Irving Berlin. Wilson had a theme song written, which expired at birth: "Boca Raton, You Have Charm All Your Own." Mizner stock jumped from $100 to $1,000 a share.

The con was a big one. Wilson was annoyed that contractors were robbing him. "He's so crooked," he said of one builder, "he'd steal two left shoes."

Wilson sent out brochures announcing that he had found Blackbeard's gold in the sand, and that the canals would have singing gondoliers and outboard motors. The Boca Raton Hotel, Burke writes, was opened in 1926. The Mizners were broke and snobbish. Afterward, a blizzard of court writs descended upon them. They got into their cars and drove off.

The rats deserted their plush nest . . .

A large delegation including members of Eastern Star, Master Masons, DeMolay and friends were present Saturday, Jan. 25 at Kingston Masonic Temple for the installation of officers who will serve the Alice M. Scardefield Constellation No. 25 of Junior Stars from now until June. Special guests were Mrs. Veronica Lynch, vice president, Grand Council of Sponsors, Downstate-Northport, L.I., and Mrs. Lillian Boyle, first vice president of District Six Council of Sponsors.

Vicki Caulfield gave her outgoing speech and presented gifts of appreciation to all who helped her during her term of office. Star of happiness, Miss Peggy Giles, accepted the gavel and called the assembly to recreation so the girls could give an outgoing degree. The degree contained a short synopsis of events which took place during Miss Caulfield's term. Miss Caulfield was escorted to the altar by her mother where she relinquished her crown and sash. Mrs. Caulfield placed the Junior Past Exalted Star Tiara upon her daughter's head and escorted her to the anti-room.

Peggy Giles, accompanied by her parents, and Susan Killeen, crown and regalia bearer, along with the other incoming officers gave their pledge of office.

Miss Giles was then installed as exalted star of light and love. In her acceptance speech, she announced her colors to be blue and yellow; her flower, yellow tea rose; her motto, Faith, Hope and United; song, "Let It Be." Her main fund raising project will be a spaghetti supper to be held in April.

Miss Giles' first official act was to present Miss Caulfield with her Junior Past Exalted Star pin. A degree was given to Miss Giles honoring her as the new exalted star and wishing her success during her term of office.

A Friendship Circle of all the youth concluded the ceremony. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Kingston Hadassah Refutes Women's Lib Position

Recently, the National Organization for Women (NOW) passed a resolution opposing volunteerism as being "exploitive" of women. NOW's leaders claim that volunteers take paying jobs away from workers and that women are made dependent on their husbands who support them while they work for nothing.

Mrs. Anne Breuer, president of the Kingston Chapter of Hadassah, dismisses the Women's Lib arguments as doctrinaire nonsense. "Of course we believe in equal job opportunity, equal pay for equal work, more and better day-care facilities for the children of working mothers, which are valid planks of the NOW platform. But women are entitled to choose whether they will stay home and raise their own children or hand them over to some one else to raise. Not all women have jobs that fulfill them; most work to put bread on the table.

"Those of us who volunteer, whether as housewives or in our spare time as working women, are making a personal contribution to something in which we believe — because we want to, not because we must."

"Hadassah offers women of all ages and backgrounds an opportunity to be part of an important movement which serves the cause of democracy and Jewish survival in the U.S. and provides friendship and needed health and welfare services to Israel. None of us could be paid for our Hadassah work, we are privileged to serve."

Hackett-Fuller Vows are Exchanged in Saugerties

MRS. DAVID W. FULLER

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Hackett of 175 Market Street, Saugerties, announce the marriage of their daughter, Cathleen, to David W. Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fuller of Colebank Road, Saugerties.

The Rev. Gerald Mullin of Mount St. Alphonsus in Esopus officiated at the ceremony at St. Mary's of the Snow Church, Saugerties. Mrs. Nan Dickman, organist, and Don Neureuther, guitarist from Mt. St. Alphonsus, provided wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a gown of white peau de soie crepe styled with a shirred Empire style bodice, mandarin collar and long fitted sleeves. The princess flared skirt extended into a chapel train. Both the skirt and train were trimmed with hand clipped lace appliques and seed pearls. Her mantilla veil was edged with matching lace and pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls which her father had given her mother on their wedding day. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Paula A. Hackett, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Susan M. Hackett, Jane T. Hackett, sisters of the bride; Maria Rinaldi, all of Saugerties.

Attendants' gowns were made of green and blue plaid taffeta styled in the Empire line with mandarin collars, long sleeves and A-line skirts. They wore matching bonnets and carried white fur muffs trimmed with sprigs of ivy. All gowns were made by the bride's mother.

Kenneth J. Hallion of West Saugerties was best man. Ushering were John Bach; Todd Hackett, brother of the bride; and Sal Misasi, all of Saugerties. The bride's youngest brother Tim escorted their mother into the church.

A reception was given at American Legion Hall. Among the guests was the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. W.A. DeRocher from Marquette, Mich.

The bride, a 1972 graduate of Saugerties High School, is employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Kingston. Her husband, a 1973 alumnus of Saugerties High School, is employed by Alpha Cement Company, Cementon.

The couple will reside at 2432 Burnett Road, Saugerties, after a wedding trip to Mt. Snow, Vermont.

A rehearsal party was given at the bridegroom's home, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Fuller.

Dear Folks:

Gals and men too, maybe? Know that "goop" we buy in a tube to cover up pimples and scars on our face, called "cover-something"? Or just about anything? And it does?

Well, my daughter taught me instead of putting the tube on your face direct — to smear some on your finger and then wipe it or better yet, pat, pat it over the scars or pimples, whichever the case may be!

Work like a charm, loves. Doesn't look as if we were doctoring our faces with "smear 'em" make up. So natural . . .

the long type so I am not as lucky as others as I don't get my dishes or ironing done while on the phone.

But I keep my mending basket near and while having a pleasant phone conversation, I do my mending and in this way it does not seem like a chore nor does it pile up on me.

Among those taking part in the festivities were Ray Lilja, Frances Gille, Grace Coddington, Beatrice Duhs and Julia Schambach. Three comedy skits by members presented the lighter side of some current inflation problems. Games and dancing were also included in the program. Proceeds from the event will be contributed to the Olive First Aid Unit. (Freeman photo)

Sees A Conspiracy To Silence Her Sex

DEAR ABBY: I have never been a women's libber, but I am now because I am now aware that there is a deplorable conspiracy being perpetrated against women by dentists in my city, and probably throughout the nation.

When a dentist makes dentures for a woman, he purposely makes them so that she can't talk properly! I have yet to see a man with dentures (and I have known several) whose dentures interfere with his speech. But all the women I know who wear dentures have trouble talking because the dentist intentionally made them that way so women will keep their mouths shut.

Don't you think it is time this inequality was brought to light? I certainly do.

I have been to three different dentists, and each one made me a set of dentures I couldn't talk with. They were all adjusted, and two dentists made me a second pair which were no better than the first.

Since I already have enough problems with dentist in this town, please don't use my name. Just sign this . . .

CAN'T TALK IN JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

DEAR CAN'T: It's highly unlikely that the dentists of Jacksonville (or any other city) are conspiring against women, but if you feel that you have been unfairly treated, take the matter up with the grievance committee of your county dental association.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a healthy young man, married one month, who says to his bride: "I won't bother you very often for sex. I want a pal, not a sweetheart"? And he lived up to it, too.

NOT BOTHERED

DEAR NOT: He may be "healthy," but your marriage is sick. Tell him that you didn't get married to live with a "pal" — and unless he tries to fulfill his role as a husband, as far as you're concerned, the marriage won't work. If he wants to be a husband, but can't he should see a doctor. If he just plain doesn't want to, you should see a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to share a comforting thought with you and with anyone else it might help.

Recently, my aged mother died. Near the end, as I sat at her bedside, knowing there wasn't a thing I could do to help her, I thought of all the things I wished that I had done for her — but hadn't.

I wrote to a dear friend in a distant city expressing those feelings to her. That friend had recently lost her husband, who had been ill for a long time. She had held down a job (just as I had) and cared for her ailing husband, just as I had cared for my mother.

In answering my letter she wrote: "After John died, I blamed myself for not having been as patient and understanding with him as I could have been, and I found myself feeling terribly guilty. Then I suddenly realized how useless such thoughts were, and I said to myself: 'All my life I have forgiven others, and now it's my turn to forgive ME!'"

Abby, that jolted me. And now I'm going to do the same. I'll remember all the things I did for my mother (and there were many) and I shall not punish myself for the things I cannot change.

GRATEFUL TO FRANCES

DEAR GRATEFUL: Your friend Frances is a wise woman. And so are you, for recognizing the dimension of her wisdom. Thanks for sharing.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Youth In County Jail On Several Charges

KINGSTON
A Shandaken youth is being held in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail after he allegedly attempted to flee from pursuing sheriff's deputies in his car, rammed a patrol car set up in a roadblock, and then struck two deputies on foot with his auto.

Deputies charged the youth, Roland F. Billadeau, 18, with first degree reckless endangerment and second degree assault, both felonies. Numerous vehicle and traffic charges are also pending, deputies said.

The incident began at about 2:30 a.m. Sunday morning when Deputy Roger Lapp spotted the Billadeau auto traveling along Route 28 toward Kingston at a high rate of speed. Lapp attempted to stop the car, and radioed for assistance when the auto would not halt. Sgt. Christopher Jones of the sheriff's department joined in the chase and a Town of Ulster patrol car set up a roadblock at the intersection of Washington Avenue and Route 32 in the city.

When Billadeau reached the roadblock, he allegedly rammed the Ulster patrol car, deputies said. Hones and Lapp, meanwhile, leaped from their cars and attempted to pull the youth from his auto. As they were approaching the car, the youth allegedly threw his car into reverse, striking Jones with the open door and pinning Lapp against one of the two sheriff's department cars. Both sheriff's cars were struck.

Deputies finally subdued Billadeau and he, Lapp and Jones were taken to the Benedictine Hospital where they were treated and released for their injuries.

Should Your Wife Collect Rare Plates?

NORTHBROOK, Ill. — A successful art dealer in this Chicago suburb has announced a new, easy way to start collecting rare porcelain plates with high resale potential.

According to Thomas Gilmore II, president of this dealership, one exceptional plate priced at $25 in 1965 now brings $1,050, and another selling at $10 in 1969 now sells for $245.

Mr. Gilmore says, "Since many plates do not increase in value, amateurs often make serious mistakes." He offers a free report on what to look for, when to buy, what to pay and much more. It even includes special offers on eagerly-sought collector plates at modest cost.

To get your free report with no obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code to Bradford Galleries, 426E Bradford Place, Northbrook, Illinois 60062. A postcard will do. Because of limited quantities, please mail your request before February 15, 1975.

Cowens Proved Jo White Right

By United Press International

Boston Celtics' guard Jo Jo White said last week he "wouldn't trade Dave Cowens for any center in the league, not even Kareem."

Cowens, as if using a national television audience and capacity Boston Garden crowd to prove White right, dominated the big Bucks' center with marksman-like shooting and sharp elbows, giving the Celtics their ninth straight win, a 120-102 triumph over Abdul-Jabbar and his Milwaukee Bucks.

Cowens had 24 points, one more than Abdul-Jabbar, and 22 rebounds to Kareem's six in the lopsided win. He hustled where Abdul-Jabbar lagged, stormed the boards while his opponent laid back and shot 11 for 23 while his opponent hit on 10 of 26 shots.

"When Dave does the job, he's the nucleus of the club," said forward Paul Silas, who contributed 12 points and 15 rebounds. "We can lose anyone but him and still be all right. He does as good a job as a center does for his club and probably does it better."

In other NBA games Sunday, New Orleans defeated New York 118-114; Kansas City-Omaha trounced Golden State 127-101; Chicago topped Washington 97-80; Philadelphia tripped Houston 90-77; Cleveland dumped Detroit 116-96, and Seattle beat Los Angeles 119-112.

Jazz 118, Knicks 114

Pete Maravich scored 33 points and handed out 12 assists, while newly-acquired Henry Bibby added 13 points against his former Knick teammates as the Jazz won their sixth game of the season. Bibby, along with New York's first-round choice in this year's college draft, was acquired

FEZLER BLASTS FROM TRAP

Fezler Leads Palmer By One in Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — Forrest Fezler, the 25-year-old San Jose winner of the unofficial Confidence Open, goes after his second victory of the year today, one stroke ahead of the pack in the rain-plagued $220,000 Hawaiian Open.

Fezler, who was hot on the heels of front runner Al Geiberger for the first two days, was 204 after 48 holes Sunday. Tied at 205 were Arnold Palmer and fast finisher Lou Graham.

Geiberger, who nursed his precarious lead through the rainy first day and windy Friday, slipped into a tie for third at 206 when he shot a 71 Sunday, including his first bogey of the rain-delayed tournament.

The big hero Sunday was Graham, who harvested a 33-3265, including an eagle on the 18th hole to jump back in the pack to his tie for second with Palmer.

Defending Hawaiian Open champ Jack Nicklaus shot a 70 Sunday which gave a 212, eight strokes off the pace.

Palmer, who charged into contention Friday, was quite pleased to be only one putt behind Fezler.

"The rain didn't help matters Sunday," he said, "but I don't mind going into the final round just one stroke behind. Palmer had five birdies and two bogies Sunday. One of his bogies came when his shot over a tree just failed to clear the top and bounced off to the side."

Fezler had five birdies and two bogeys on his Sunday round too. He trapped his tee shot on the par four sixth and 12th holes.

"I took two to get out of the 12th," he said, "But my second put me 2 1/2 feet from the pin and I got my bogey."

Fezler said he was confident that he had a good chance for the title as he has been hitting the ball real well lately.

"I'm not playing it safe," he said, "and I'll be going after everything today. He is paired with Palmer in today's play. Graham, who said he felt woozy and weak when the Sunday round started, explained that his strength came back later in the game."

"A few birdies will always cure a lot of ill," he said.

The weather forecast for today is continued showers, but the national weather service says there is a possibility they will clear off this afternoon.

Nets Still Streaking

The New York Nets made their seventh straight victory look so easy Sunday that they didn't even need star Julius Erving for the final quarter.

Larry Kenon, New York's "other forward," scored 31 points as the Nets crushed the travel-weary San Diego Conquistadors 126-90. The victory kept the Nets a game ahead of Kentucky, which defeated Utah 96-86, in the American Basketball Association Eastern Division race.

Kenon, outfitted with a new lightweight knee brace, hit on 14-of-19 shots and also pulled down 10 rebounds before sitting down with almost 10 minutes left in the game. Erving, who has been bothered by chronic knee problems, played only 30 minutes but still managed 21 points and 10 rebounds.

Caldwell Jones and Bo Lamar each had 22 points the Q's, who played in Denver Saturday night and did not arrive in New York until 8 a.m. EST for the afternoon game.

"I bet this is the first time Doc (Erving) has played only 30 minutes in a game this year," Net Coach Kevin Loughery said. "I was glad to give him a rest but more importantly, this kind of game gave us an opportunity to use guys who hadn't been playing much."

In other ABA games Sunday, Virginia downed St. Louis 109-101, San Antonio ripped Indiana 119-100 and Memphis stunned Denver 120-103.

Colonels 96, Stars 86

Artis Gilmore had 19 points and Dan Issel 18 to key Kentucky's win over Utah. The Colonels erupted for eight straight points in the third quarter to snap a tie. Ron Boone led the Stars with 25.

Squires 109, Spirits 101

George Irvine, celebrating his 27th birthday, scored 23 points, including eight in a row in the second quarter, as Virginia downed St. Louis. Red Robbins led the Squires with 25 while rookie Marvin Barnes had 31 for the Spirits.

Spurs 119, Pacers 100

George Gervin's career-high 44 points carried San Antonio past Indiana. A 13-point burst in the second quarter put the Spurs ahead and Gervin iced the victory with a 20-point final quarter. George McGinnis led Indiana with 34.

Sounds 120, Nuggets 103

Chuck Williams and Stew Johnson teamed for 57 points as Memphis upset Denver, the winningest team in pro basketball. Williams had 29 points and Johnson 28 as the Sounds sent Denver to only its 12th loss in 54 games. Tom Owens added 22 for Memphis while Mike Green led the Nuggets with 20.

Donna Burdine Winner

MIAMI (UPI) — Donna Caponi Young had a secret.

Her husband shared it, and there was a rumor going around the $40,000 Burdine's Invitational Golf tournament.

After Mrs. Young won the $5,700 first prize Sunday, she was confronted by sports writers.

Face in hands, she admitted: "I know. I was 30 years old last Wednesday. I didn't tell anyone. I just went to my motel room by myself and watched television. My husband called to wish me a happy birthday and I said, 'I don't want to talk about it.'"

Passing the 30-year milestone might have hurt her pride but it did nothing to hurt her golf game.

In winning her first tournament since 1973, she shot a brilliant 67, birdying five holes and bogeying none. The 67 broke the course record of 68 and tied the tournament record set by Peggy Wilson in 1969.

Mrs. Young finished at 208 over the par-72 Kendale Lakes Country Club course for the 54 holes. She was three shots ahead of four veteran Kathy Cornelius, who shot a 70 Sunday.

Another shot back, tied for third, were Janet Caponi Lopera, Mrs. Young's younger sister, and Susie McAllister. Mrs. Lopera parred all 18 holes for her 72-212 and Miss McAllister had a 69-212.

CONNORS—The Greatest

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors is sitting on top of the tennis world today.

The southpaw from Bellville, Ill., moved up a notch in everyone's estimation Sunday by soundly defeating Rod Laver and strengthening his claim to the No. 1 spot.

Before a crowd estimated at 3,800 at Caesars Palace Tennis Pavilion and a nationwide television audience, Connors faced the cool and cagey Laver for the first time and beat him in four sets, 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

Connors won the $100,000 winner-take all prize put up by Caesars plus a new automobile valued at $10,000. Laver didn't go away empty-handed. He will share in television money and get around $50,000.

At 36, Laver's reflexes may be slowing a bit. Both are left-handers and that gave neither one an advantage. But Connors hits a two-fisted backhand with all the power in his 22-year-old muscles and Laver indicated that gave him trouble.

"It's different playing those double handers," said Laver. "You have to get used to them."

With his two-fisted backhand, Connors probably hits the ball as hard or harder than anyone playing tennis today. He covered an amazing amount of territory with his springy legs, went to the net well and volleyed with sharply angled shots that very often caught Laver flat-footed.

Attack is the name of the game for Connors and he seldom let up, although Laver did ace him half a dozen times. Connors' own serve was often too hot for Laver to handle and all he could do was get a little wood on the ball. Laver was forced frequently into weak defensive returns which Connors more often than not put away with ease.

Connors was credited with only one clean ace.

Laver got his big serve going at its peak in the third set, which he won, but that was too late. The red-haired Australian, however, did not fold in the fourth set against Connors, who didn't slow down a bit. In the 10th game of the fourth set, Connors was at match point five times but Laver fought him off and held his service to tie the set at five.

Connors then held his service to go ahead 6-5 and broke Laver with a love game to win the fourth and final set 7-5. Twice during the last game, Connors got points when a ball tipped the net and popped out of Laver's reach.

Connors has been accused of arrogance in past victories, but this time he was a gracious winner.

"It wasn't a one-sided match," he said. "Rod mixed it up very well. The whole court was used."

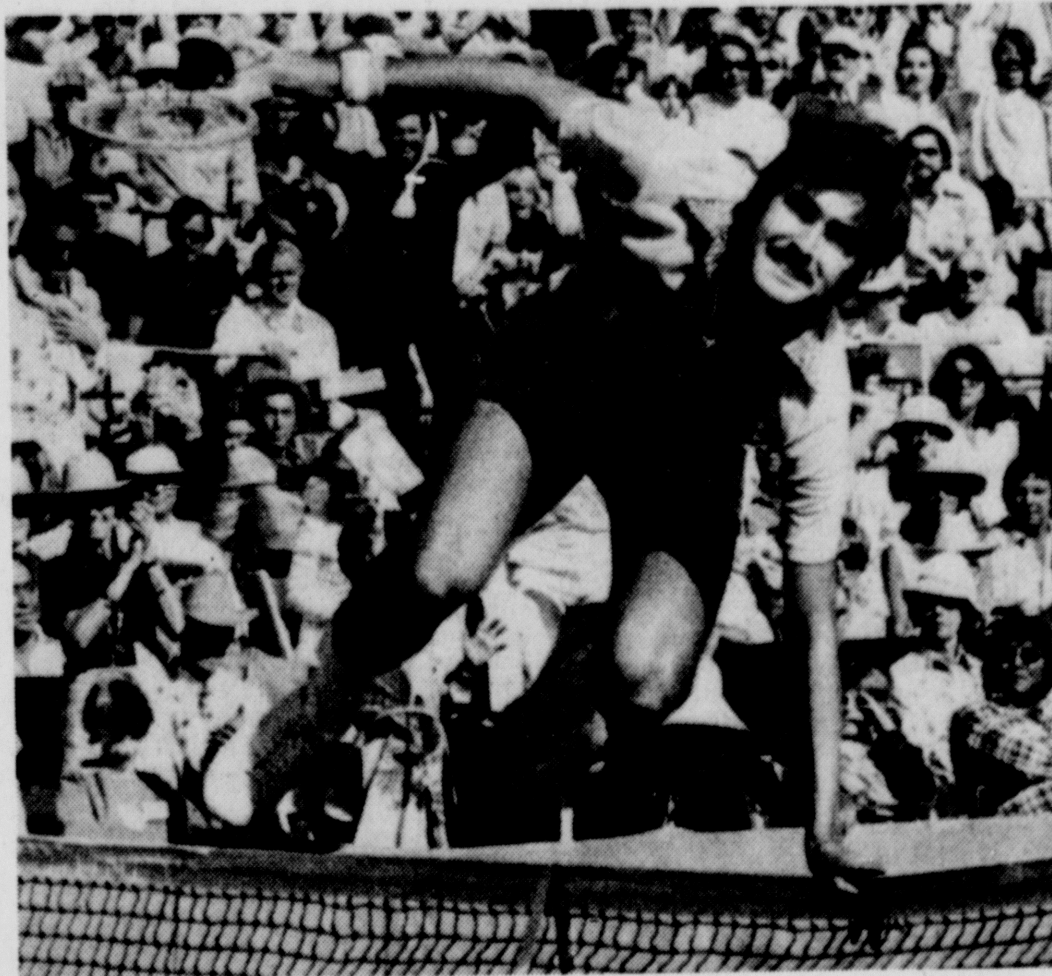

Connors suggested a rematch and a weary Laver said with a smile, "Sure, if I get a year younger I'll think about it."

Someone asked Laver if Connors' deceptiveness beat him and he replied, "It wasn't deceptiveness that beat me. It was just that my poor old body couldn't get there in time."

Connors heads this week to Little Rock, Ark., to play in an indoor tournament while Laver is off to his home in Corona Del Mar, Calif., to rest.

The Happy Clincher

Mexico's Paul Ramirez vaults the net after Mexico's third win in as many days clinches a victory over the United States in Davis Cup play. Ramirez won with sets of 7-5, 7-9, 6-4, 6-2. (UPI)

Bjorn Borg—Golden Boy

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Bjorn Borg almost had as tough a time getting to the locker room as he did slamming his way to victory in the Richmond World Championship Tennis Tournament.

"Borg, Borg, Borg," chanted a throng of young tennis groupies swarming him for autographs and kisses after his comeback 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 win over third-seeded Arthur Ashe Sunday.

"You're the greatest," sighed a young girl with braces, diving in for a kiss.

The 18-year-old Super Swede, the tourney's No. 1 seed, scribbled his name as fast as he could while wading through the girls.

"You're number one," a freckle-faced fan cried as Borg finally managed to duck into the locker room.

"That's my ambition," Borg said afterwards. "To be number one in the world. But it's too early to tell if I'll be able to do it. There are a lot of fine players and every year there are new ones."

"If I work hard enough, if I apply myself, then maybe I can do it," said Borg, who won over $200,000 on the tour last year while winning a flock of tournaments, including the French and Italian championships.

Ashe, a 31-year-old veteran of the pro tour, said "Borg is only 18 years old and nobody his age can touch him."

Will he become the world's premier player?

"No one knows, that's any iffy question," Ashe said. "He could break his leg tomorrow. You never know what could happen. You never know who's going to be number one. 'Who ever it is won't be number one for long,' he said, noting the number of new stars emerging on the tour each year. "It's almost impossible to stay up there."

Maybe Borg isn't the best yet but he proved to be No. 1 in this 32-player, $60,000 tournament.

In the finals, Ashe took the first set, primarily on fine net play.

But Borg kept him off balance and away from the net in the second and third sets, with a barrage of blazing twofisted backhands and forehands. His serve also appeared to improve with each game and after the first set, in which he was broken twice, Borg held on to his serve and broke Ashe twice to pocket the $12,000 first place prize money.

Ashe received $6,000 for his second place finish.

No Sweat for Ramirez

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors won $100,000 for a tennis match at Las Vegas, Nev., Sunday but Raul Ramirez could have cared less.

The poised youngster from the quiet little fishing port of Ensenada in Baja California regards the Davis Cup—not money—as the No. 1 item in his tennis life.

Ramirez, 21, provided surprising Mexico with only its second Davis Cup triumph ever over the United States Sunday by downing power-hitting lefthander Roscoe Tanner, America's No. 4-rated player, 7-5, 7-9, 6-4, 6-2.

"I'm very, very happy," smiled the former University of Southern California star. "The thing I want most to do now is win the Davis Cup for my country. I want my best wins in the Davis Cup."

Ramirez didn't earn a peso for his one-man show against America to put the Mexicans into the third round of the Davis Cup North American Zone against South Africa, last year's default Davis Cup winner.

But he broke down and cried with happiness after the Tanner match.

"There will be some conflicts in my schedule coming up," said the second-year World Championship Tennis pro, "but somehow I will play for my country."

Ramirez said the fact that Connors, America's No. 1 player, and Arthur Ashe and Marty Riessen were absent from the U.S. team did not detract from the Mexicans' win.

"I don't think this was a weak U.S. team," said Mexico's new tennis hero. "I think it was a strong team."

Ramirez probably cost Dennis Ralston, the U.S. captain and coach, his job.

Ralston said after the Mexicans' surprising 3-2 triumph (Stan Smith defeated Roberto Chavez 6-2, 9-7, 6-1 in a meaningless final singles match) that he did not expect to be invited back by U.S. Lawn Tennis Association President Stanley Malles for 1976.

"There will be a lot of people pushing for a new captain so Connors will play," said Ralston, who coached the U.S. to five straight Davis Cup wins from 1968 through 1972.

"There is a lot of pressure when a team loses in any sport. The first guy to go is the guy in charge. A lot of people would like the job but I have no clue who it will be. I do not expect to be involved next year."

Said Malles, an Indianapolis manufacturing company owner: "It (Ralston's dismissal) is not something I've thought of or even discussed. He'll be considered along with some other people, though. Denny probably feels pretty down right now."

Connors has refused to play on three straight U.S. Davis Cup teams. He went to Jamaica as an alternate in 1972 but wasn't used by Ralston and there reportedly are some hard feelings.

"It's possible it's a personality conflict," said Malles, "but Jimmy never has given us that reason."

"Yes, our No. 1 priority will be to have Jimmy on the team but it always has been. I think he will play next year, too."

The U.S. now has had a three-year Davis Cup drought, all with Ralston as captain and coach. The U.S. team was shocked 4-1 at Bogota, Colombia, last year and lost in the Challenge Round to Australia in 1973.

Mexico has won only two Davis Cup series in 24 tries against the United States and both of them came with Pancho Contreras as coach. The Mexicans stopped the U.S. squad at Chapultepec, Mexico, 3-2 in 1962.

"This was better than our win in Mexico," said Contreras, "because this time the U.S. team can have no excuses about altitude or anything."

Mexico will host the South Africans at Mexico City but there are no dates set yet.

Bruins Have That Feeling . . .

The Boston Bruins feel the law of averages is finally catching up to them—the right way.

For most of the year, according to Coach Don Cherry, the Bruins have either run into hot goaltenders, had the puck bounce in funny ways, or had a ghastly combination of both. But Sunday night they tried a different approach and came away with their best played game since before the All-Star break, defeating the Philadelphia Flyers 5-1.

Bobby Orr had a goal and four assists, while Gregg Sheppard added two goals as the Bruins decided to get back to basics and make their own breaks.

By winning, Boston remained nine points behind first-place Buffalo in Division 4 of the National Hockey League as the Sabres belted the Kansas City Scouts 8-1. Philadelphia, meantime, had its lead in Division 1 reduced to nine points since the runner-up New York Rangers skated to a 5-5 tie with the Detroit Red Wings.

In other NHL action, Montreal beat California 5-1, Atlanta beat Minnesota 5-3 and Chicago salvaged a 1-1 tie against the New York Islanders.

Both of Sheppard's goals came on deflections. The first, at 19:48 of the first period, came after Al Sims' original shot bounced off Andre Dupont and onto Sheppard's stick. The second goal, in the third period, came on a breakaway. John Bucyk scored Boston's first goal at 12:56 of the opening period, Phil Esposito scored from his favorite slot position at 15:17, and Sheppard's first goal followed to make it 3-0.

Orr and Philadelphia's Bill Barber traded second period goals, and Sheppard's third period goal came after the Flyers put five straight shots on Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert.

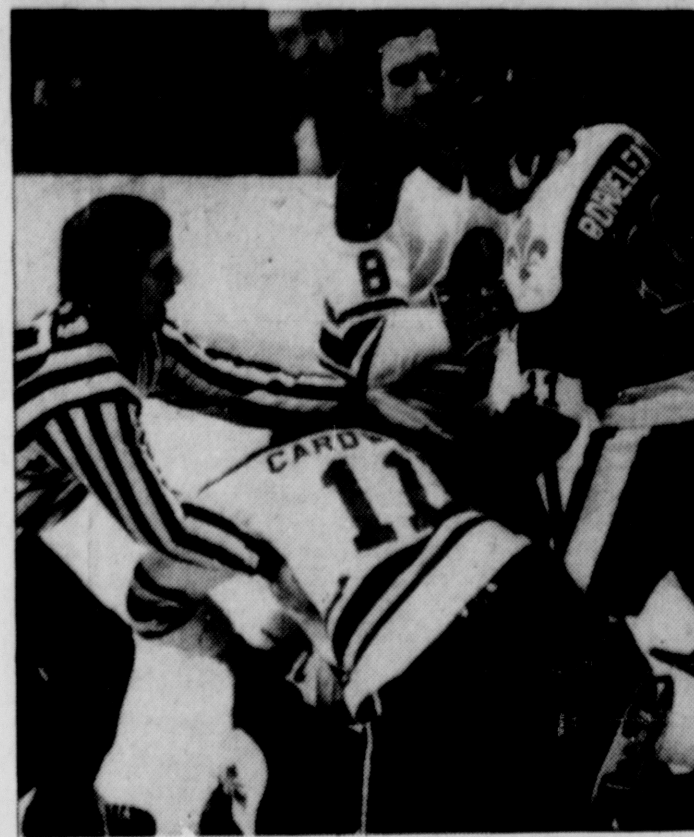

Sabres 8, Scouts 1
Jerry Korab, Rick Martin and Peter McNab scored two goals each for the Sabres, who set a club record by taking 58 shots on goal. Simon Nolek, with his 21st goal of the season, accounted for the only Kansas City score against Buffalo goaltender Denis Herron.

Red Wings 5, Rangers 5
Rod Gilbert scored four goals for the Rangers, the second time in his 13-year career he has achieved that figure, but New York still blew a four-goal lead. Bill Hogaboam had two goals for the Red Wings, including the final goal of the game with 14:04 left to play.

Canadiens 5, Seals 1
Rookie Rick Hampton put California ahead with the game 14:32 old, but Yvan Cournoyer got the Canadiens even 22 seconds later and Steve Shutt put them ahead for good midway through the second session. The victory was the 11th in a row on the road for Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden.

Flames 5, North Stars 3
Rey Comeau had two goals and Larry Romanchuk a goal and an assist to lift Atlanta to victory. After Comeau and Minnesota's Doug Rombough exchanged goals, Romanchuk put the Flames ahead for good at 4:24 of the second period.

Islanders 1, Black Hawks 1
Darcy Rota slapped a 35-foot shot past Islander goaltender Billy Smith at 2:20 of the final period to give Chicago its tie. Rookie Clark Gillies scored the New York goal with 30 seconds remaining in the first period.

COBLESKILL
Rondout Valley High's wrestling team placed third over the weekend in the Cobleskill Invitational Wrestling Tournament scoring a total of 83 points to finish behind Shenandoah and Mt. Pleasant.

The Ganders tried to defend the title they won here last year against six new opponents, but Mt. Pleasant totaled 102½, and Shenandoah had 88 points.

Steve Coddington in 112, Bob Krom in 145 and Russ Kortright in 177 all won individual titles. RVC's co-captain Tom Barry, however, had his 15 match winning streak stopped in 98 as he lost a 2-1 decision to Mt. Pleasant's Mark DeMeo.

Ted Nadratowski also captured a second for Rondout, advancing to the finals of 155, and John Nadratowski placed third in 167.

Kawisha New Leader

MOUNT SNOW, Vt. (UPI) — Hank Kashiwa is the new leader on the pro skiing circuit, winning the slalom at the Benson & Hedges Classic Sunday.

Kashiwa, 25, of Old Forge, N.Y., beat French slalom specialist Jean-Noel Augert in the finals, winning by a cumulative time of .057 after two runs.

The victory gave Kashiwa 25 points to push him into first place in the pro standings, and made him $4,000 richer for total earnings of $22,600 so far this year.

Terry Palmer of Kearsarge, N.H., finished third, beating Norway's Lasse Hamre in the third place runoff.

Kashiwa said afterwards, "I feel great. I'm skiing great. I can go all the way."

Kashiwa becomes the first American to lead the pro tour in two years. He has finished in the top three in eight of the 10 races on the pro circuit this year—two victories, four seconds and two thirds.

Former tour leader Henri Duvillard was put out in the quarterfinals. He still leads in the money standings with $23,900, but on the pro skiing circuit, standings are determined by points.

Kashiwa won $5,500 overall this weekend in the Benson & Hedges Classic, getting $1,500 for his third place finish in the giant slalom Saturday.

The pro tour moves next weekend to Alpine Valley, Wis.

Busy Month For Ol' Scrooge

OAKLAND (UPI) — Charlie Finley, who claims he hasn't given up on Jim "Catfish" Hunter, has a busy month ahead of him if what some of his three-time World Champion Oakland A's say is true.

During the weekend, seven A's indicated they are going to take Finley to arbitration over salary demands for the 1975 season and almost every one of them is using Hunter as a barometer for his individual demands.

Hunter gained his free agency in recent weeks after Finley failed to pay him all of his 1974 salary.

Skate Champs Repeat

OAKLAND (UPI) — For the first time since 1959, defending champions won again in all four major categories at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships concluded during the weekend.

But each received a stiff challenge for the title.

Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., took her second straight senior women's event but was pushed all the way by 17-year-old Garden Grove, Calif. skater Wendy Burge.

Miss Hamill, who is 18, has been behind in her training because of an ankle injury suffered last November. She built enough of a lead in the compulsory school figures to retain her crown.

Miss Burge's free skating, however, was the surprise of the women's competition. She pushed Miss Hamill in that category to finish second overall. At the World Championships in Munich last year, Miss Hamill was rated the top free skater of the competition while finishing second overall.

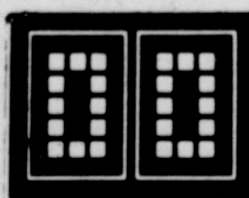

Miss Burge and Kath Malmberg of Rockford, Ill., qualified along with the U.S. champions for this year's world competition at Colorado Springs, Colo., in March.

Gordon McKellen Jr. of Lake Placid, N.Y., took his third straight senior men's title. Second place Terry Kubicka of Cypress, Calif. outskated the champion in freestyle, however. McKellen fell twice on his way to the title, once in the short compulsory program and again in the longer freestyle finals while trying a triple-axel jump. His lead after the school figures held up for him to win.

Kubicka's exciting freeskating performance Saturday night earned him two perfect marks of 6.0 from the judges and qualified him along with McKellen for the World Championships.

The top two pair and dance couples also go to the World Championships. In the senior's pair events Melissa Militano of Dix Hills, N.Y. and Johnny Johns of Bloomfield Hills, Mich. defended their championship. They had to come from behind a California couple, teenagers Tai Babilonia of Mission Hills and Randy Gardner of Los Angeles, who led after the preliminary short program.

The $4,975 Question.

Q. In times like these, can you reasonably expect to get $4975 worth of car for $4975? Well, let's talk fact.

First, the Audi 100LS hasn't risen one dollar in price this year. That puts you way ahead right there.

Second, the Germans build the Audi to last. Planned obsolescence just isn't compatible with their thinking.

Third, consider the built-in luxuries: the comfort of legroom and headroom equal to some cars twice the price. And orthopedically-designed reclining seats.

Fourth, it's the only luxury car combining front-wheel drive, torsion crank rear axle, rack-and-pinion steering, and front disc brakes. It handles superbly.

Fifth, on top of everything else, it gets about 24 miles to the gallon*.

True, it's hard to find full value in any product today. But this isn't just any product, it's the Audi 100LS: $4975* worth of luxury car, without question.

*Suggested retail price East Coast P.O.E. West Coast slightly higher. Local taxes and other dealer delivery charges, if any, additional.

*Mileage based on German Industry Standard DIN-70030.

The answer is Audi

In YMCA 'A' League

DeMicco Motors Scores in OT

KINGSTON DeMicco Motors took charge in overtime in the YMCA A League and battled to an 85-82 win over Boiceville Inn. In a B League contest, Downs St. Driving School topped Doc Smith's, 64-57.

DeMicco's almost never had a chance at an extra period, but Boiceville's Jim Van Steenburg missed the free throw that would have broken the 78-78 tie with only four seconds left in regulation. The Motormen got new life as Van Steenburg missed, however, and outscored the Innkeepers, 7-4 in overtime.

Ed Priest pumped in 22 points, Mike Jordan had 18 and Jim Ferraro and Ed Duffy each had 12 to pace the win. It was never a runaway as Boiceville led most of the first half, fell behind by as much as eight points in the second half only to pull into a tie with 1:02 remaining.

The game was tied 17 times, and the lead changed hands ten times throughout the contest. John Stelcin led the losers with a game-high 30 points, and teammate Vic Gold added 23 more.

Fouls, fouls and more fouls marred the B battle...57 shots in all were taken from the line. The Drivers sunk 26 of them to pad their victory.

Joe Spada canned 10 of 13 freebies and tied Joe Harrel for team scoring honors with 16 points. With 6:02 left on the clock, Downs St. ran off 12 consecutive points on foul shots to take command.

Martin Schleede scored 17 points for Doc Smith's.

The scoring:

Morrisville Dunks Paltz Swimmers

NEW PALTZ New Paltz State, weakened by one of its leading swimmers performing at half-strength after a bout with the flu, dropped a 74-39 decision to Morrisville Community College in the Elting Gym pool.

Hawk Dave Loeffler, just out of the campus infirmary, could swim in only one event, and it wasn't one of his specialties (100 yard freestyle). He finished second.

Denied his "usual" two first place efforts, the Hawks had to pick up the bulk of their points from their two other stars, Craig Wilson and Pat Halpin.

Wilson was victorious in the 200 individual medley and the 200 breaststroke. Halpin triumphed in the 500 and 1000 yard freestyles.

Morrisville won both relays, as well as the eight other individual events. Te defeat dropped New Paltz to 1-6 on the season. The Hawks host Acker's Bar needed two overtime periods to do it, but they are the only undefeated team in the SAA Premier Basketball League, following their double-overtime 100-94 victory over Naccarato's Insurance to maintain a 3-0 record in the early stages of the second half.

In other games, Boo's Tavern stayed in second place a game behind the leaders with an 85-82 squeaker over The Outrigger, and Allen Archery routed Annandale Hotel, 112-75, for its first win and third straight setback for the Hotel Men.

Acker's led Naccarato's from the start but the Insurers finally grabbed the lead with 2:20 remaining. They then built up a five-point lead but the Insurancemen rallied to tie the score 84-84 in regulation time.

After the first overtime it was 90-90, with Acker's finally wrapping it up with a 10-4 margin in the second overtime. The winners got a spectacular 36-point, 15-rebound performance from Jim Wherry, former Bucknell University ace, with Scott Miller adding 20 points. Jerry Hawkins handled 14 assists.

Captain Jack Naccarato paced his charges with 32 points. Al Hrdlicka tossed in 21, Ron Thomas 16. Tim Murphy contributed 12 rebounds and 8 assists.

Boo's led Outrigger by three points at the end of three quarters and battled Outrigger to a 19-19 standoff in the fourth period. Boo's led by one point when Outrigger took the ball out of bounds with 8 seconds on the clock. But the inbounds pass was fumbled, recovered by Boo's and with 2 seconds remaining Mike Derrenbacher converted two free throws for the final 3-point edge.

Iron Mike led the winners with 22 points and added seven assists, while Big John Carnright and Big Ray Lindhorst tallied 19 each and pulled down 14 and 13 rebounds, respectively. Teddy Wood led Outrigger with 25 points and all rebounders with 19. A.J. Murphy had 22 points and Rod Chando 21 to go with 12 assists.

In the somebody's-got-to-win game, Annandale Hotel led in the early stages then was engulfed by Allen's. The win was the first of the season for the Archers and the setback extended Annandale's losing streak to 16 games over two seasons. The Archers totally dominated the board with a 67-29 margin.

Frank Allen fired 29 points and had 11 rebounds and 7 assists for the Archers. Earl Edmond netted 22 points and 12 rebounds. Fran Prendergast hit 21 points and led with 17 rebounds. Mark Toney combined 16 points and 10 rebounds and Harry Brink hit 14 points and 11 rebounds.

The Hotelmen were paced by Cal Fowx's 25 points, Pete Connel's 14 points and 10 rebounds and Gary McDonald's 12 points and 10 rebounds.

Happy days are here again.

93 miles per hour? We obviously don't recommend it, but it is reassuring to know that as you get onto a hectic expressway, a new Volkswagen Rabbit Hatchback has the power for incredible acceleration. From 0 to 50 in only 8.2 seconds. Quicker than a Monza 2+2.
38 miles per gallon? That's what the Rabbit averaged on the highway in the 1975 model Federal Environmental Protection Agency fuel economy tests. The Rabbit in the city averaged a nifty 24. Not bad for a sub-compact with all the interior room of some mid-size cars.

All this, plus the most complete and advanced new car coverage plan in the business: The Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis.

Happy days are here again? We think you'll think so after you've driven a Rabbit.

Crucial To Early Dental Health Care

KINGSTON The Ulster-Greene Dental Society has recommended that children should make their first visit to the dentist as soon as their full set of 20 primary teeth has appeared. This week is being celebrated as Children's Dental Health Week.

According to the Dental Society: "These first teeth are very necessary for chewing, speech and good looks. In addition, they help in proper jaw development. Further, proper space must be maintained by healthy teeth in their normal position or the permanent teeth may come in crooked."

"Because these primary teeth are so important to his future, your child should visit the dentist by the time all his primary teeth have erupted. The first visit to the dental office is important because it sets the stage for building a lifetime of good dental care habits. The dentist and his assistants will try to make this visit as pleasant as possible. They will gain his trust and try to make him feel welcome."

The Dental Society also recommends that parents discuss that first visit to the dentist with their child beforehand, emphasizing that the dentist is there to assure that his mouth and teeth remain healthy.

To make that first trip go smoothly, the Dental Society suggests several parental tips:

- Make dental visits a fun adventure; treat them lightly.
- Don't bribe the child to go to the dentist, or threaten the trip as a punishment.
- Avoid letting your child know of any anxieties you may have had about dentists.

• Don't tell the child frightening stories about dentists.

• Remember that the basis for developing and practicing good dental health habits is parental example, guidance and encouragement.

In another aspect of early dental care, the society points out that a baby's teeth can suffer real damage if he is regularly put to bed with sweetened fruit juice, formula or other sugared beverage.

"Drinking from a bottle at mealtime does not cause harm to the teeth," said the Dental Society, "but prolonged nap and nocturnal nursing can be very damaging to erupting teeth." It recommends that no child past the age of 10 months should take a bottle to bed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
After you've reviewed the situation, you'll see you weren't entirely blameless in a misunderstanding with a loved one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you're involved in with another is going to take more concerted effort by each of you to be successful.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

You'll accomplish much more today with a partner or companion than you will on your own. Co-operation's the key word.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're doing personal decorating at home now, don't use materials or designs that are more artistic than functional.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you let your heart rule your head this evening, you'll make some moves you'll later regret. Use your sharp logic instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A chum is not in the best position to advise you regarding family finances. Her impractical solutions won't help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'd be wise to keep some distance between yourself and anyone working for you now. Make it a strict employer-employee relationship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If your present budget has a little surplus, use it to pay off old obligations before buying anything new.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-

Dec. 21) Feelings of a family member will be hurt. She believes you're more considerate of a friend than you are of her.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You think you'll have to beat about the bush in a situation you're reluctant to face. The direct approach is your best route.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Impulsively, you're going to do something for a friend that will dent your wallet. Reflect a bit before volunteering aid.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A goal important to you will not be achieved on the first try. It can be reached if you're persistent enough on the second.

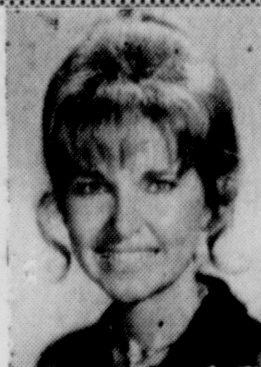

Feb. 4, 1975

Contacts and new associations you'll make this year through a group interest will be of immense value in furthering your hopes. Get out and mix.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

UNINVOLVED: (Q.) All I ever do is watch TV. I don't like to go out because I hear so much about what happens to young girls. I think I'm really afraid of getting pregnant. All my friends call me chicken because I don't go out with boys and get involved. Please tell me what to do. — 15 in New York

(A.) A girl does not get pregnant just by going out with a boy. She does not ordinarily get into this or some other kind of trouble unless she breaks one or more rules of sensible behavior.

If you are sensible and behave sensibly, and have as friends sensible girls and boys, the chances are good that you can have fun and stay out of trouble.

It certainly is not sensible to spend your life in a jail just to keep out of trouble. That is sort of what you are trying to do now.

DIVORCE: (Q.) My parents are getting a divorce because of my sister and me. We like our parents a lot and want to stop the divorce, but they think it's best for us.

What should we do about it? — Unhappy in Indiana (A.) A divorce usually results from several differences. Your parents' concern for your sister and you probably has a part, but I doubt that it is the only factor in their divorce plans.

Assure them that you love them and want them to stay together if they can possibly do so and stay reasonably happy.

Assure them that if they can't stay together you will keep on loving them — both of them.

No matter what they decide — and they must to the deciding — do not blame yourself. All this applies to your sister too.

Believe It or Not!

Settlement at Indian-Occupied Novitiate

GRESHAM, Wis. (UPI) — Gunfire shattered the peace around the Indian-occupied Alexian Brothers novitiate Sunday night, authorities said evacuation of the building probably would go ahead later today under terms of an agreement reached before the shooting.

No injuries were reported in the shooting, which began about 6 1/2 hours after the settlement was reached. The band of Indians has occupied the 64-room abbey since New Year's Day.

National Guard spokesman said there was "heavy gunfire" in the woods around the abbey. Peace was restored after armored personnel carriers were moved inside the guard perimeter.

The spokesman said no guardsmen fired any shots. He would not say whether the gunfire came from the novitiate or was aimed at it. There have been threats and counterthreats between area whites and Indians the past several weeks.

A National Guard helicopter flying over the area with floodlights trained on the woods was also fired on, according to a guard spokesman, but later his superior officer said he could not confirm it.

Agreement between the Indians, who call themselves the Menominee Warrior Society, and the Alexian Brothers came about noon Sunday.

The Alexians agreed to turn over the abbey to the Indians for a downpayment of "$1 and other considerations," according to Bill White of the Menominee Peoples Committee, which has helped in negotiations.

Brother Maurice Wilson said it also was understood a good faith effort would be made by the Menominees "to provide fair reimbursement" for the facility.

The warrior society originally demanded they be given title to the property free and clear, and the Alexians originally asked for $750,000. Wilson did not specify whether the Indians were still expected to raise that amount.

Dennis Banks, a national leader of the American Indian Movement, called the agreement a "victory" for Indians everywhere.

He said the agreement was particularly suitable as the nation approaches its bicentennial because "the next 200 years should not be like the past 200. We cannot tolerate the ripoffs, the injustices any longer."

A negotiator for the Alexians said Indian demands were met "in an attempt to prevent further violence."

An area farmer snowmobiling near the guard perimeter Saturday night was shot in the head and remained in serious condition today in a Green Bay hospital.

Authorities said they have been unable to find out who fired the shots or to determine whether the shooting was connected with the occupation.

'Help Me, God... Where Is the Church'

CHARRED BODY IS REMOVED

(UPI)

MANILA (UPI) — A Philippine Airlines prop-jet, its right wing in flames, crashed today in a rice field south of Manila while the pilot tried vainly to make an emergency landing. The aircraft exploded on impact and killed 32 of 33 persons aboard.

A PAL spokesman said the lone survivor was Roger Douglas Collins, 51, an American timber consultant who crawled from the wreckage of the burning plane, his clothing on fire, moaning, "Help me, God! Where is the Church!"

Collins, delirious with pain, mumbled the names of several towns in Texas, including Galveston and Houston. Family members told UPI he was from Winner, S.C., is married to a Filipino and has been living in the Philippines since the end of World War II.

Doctors at the suburban Makati Medical Center where Collins was transferred from a hospital near the crash site said he was in critical condition.

They said he suffered a fractured skull, and 80 per cent of his body sustained second-degree burns.

A PAL spokesman said among the dead were the Rev. John Hudson Mitchell, a 56-year-old Jesuit missionary from New Rochelle, N.Y., and two British subjects, Cecil Rivers, a steel consultant, and Josephine Rivers.

It was the third incident today involving Far Eastern planes.

Seventy passengers aboard a Japan Air Lines 747 Jumbo jet on a charter flight from Tokyo to Paris were poisoned from a flight breakfast and hospitalized in Copenhagen today. An airline spokesman said he did not know how seriously ill the passengers were.

A small explosion and fire in a lavatory forced a Pan American Airways 747 Jumbo jet bound for New Delhi to return to Bangkok early today with its 65 passengers and 12 crewmen. Damage to the plane was small; an Indian citizen was treated for minor burns and was being questioned. Officials said the cause was not known but that they had found butane lighter fillers in a lavatory, their tops broken off.

A Philippines Airline spokesman originally had said there were 32 persons on board the Hawker-Sidley aircraft — 27 passengers, including an infant girl, four crewmembers, and an air marshal. Later, an airline spokesman said there were twin girl infants on board.

A Cloud of Death for Nine In Texas Home

DENVER CITY, Tex. (UPI) — The white cloud of poison gas billowed from the ruptured oilwell and drifted 200 yards, seeping into the home of Tom Merrill. Inside Merrill, his wife and two sons were asleep.

Essie Merrill, 31, awoke, at first not knowing exactly why. She looked at the clock beside their bed. It was 5 a.m. Sunday. There was something wrong.

She sniffed once, twice and shook her 33-year-old husband from his slumber.

"I recognize the odor and knew what we were up against," Merrill said.

He and his wife scrambled into the next room and forced their children out of bed.

Merrill grabbed for the phone, dialed the number of their next door neighbor, the J.C. Patton family, and prayed that he wasn't too late.

He was. Glenda Patton, 40, answered the call and her 42-year-old husband went outside their home to see where the smell could be coming from.

But the Pattons made the fatal mistake of returning to the house. Mrs. Patton called the city police and then called back the Merrill household to tell them that her husband had come back inside and passed out. Minutes later they and their 18-year-old daughter Deede were dead.

So were six others caught in the deadly cloud of gas — fumes from an unattended carbon dioxide injection system designed to squeeze as much oil as possible from a well.

The Merrills escaped. He weaved his family out to his car, pushed his children in the back seat, got his wife in the passenger's seat and climbed behind the wheel.

"We managed to back out in the road and she (his wife) fell over my foot, slamming the accelerator to the floor and that's the way we got to town," Merrill said.

The Merrills were the lucky ones. Police arrived to find the dead — the three Pattons plus five others staying at their home: Mrs. Patton's parents, J.R. May, 57, of Arlington, Tex., 57, and his 55-year-old wife; Mrs. Patton's sister and her husband, A. L. Amerson, 53, of Portales, N.M.; and Clara Peevey, 18, a friend of Deede Patton's.

The ninth victim was Steve Sparger, 19, an employee of Atlantic Richfield.

Sparger worked as a night rider at the pumping station. According to his log, he received a report of a badsmelling gas originating from the wellhead. It was Sparger's job to investigate such reports.

"It looked as if he realized what happened, put the truck in reverse and tried to back out, but couldn't," Yoakum County coroner D.H. Henry said. "He was in the truck in a ditch."

"They were pumping CO2 (carbon dioxide) into a well to get more oil out of it," an Atlantic Richfield spokesman said. "Something broke in the injection system at the well-head."

A crew with gas masks cut off the carbon dioxide supply.

but it was several hours before the heavier than air gas dissipated and it was safe for residents to return home. There was no wind and the gas clung to the wet ground.

Gromyko in Cairo Confab

By UPI

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko flew to Cairo today to confer with Egyptian leaders who have spurned Moscow by accepting a U.S. bid to mediate a second-stage, limited Middle East peace agreement.

The Soviet envoy departed from Damascus, where Syrian leaders backed Moscow's Middle East peace strategy of attempting to convene the full Geneva peace conference in which the Soviet Union is a cosponsor.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, however, repeated his support Sunday for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's blueprint for peace, which envisions step by step accords rather than the Geneva talks.

Sadat said he was prepared to accept an Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai mountain passes and the Abu Rodeis oilfields in a second phase of military disengagement with Israel.

"If Kissinger came and declared Israel's readiness to withdraw from the passes and the oilfields in Sinai, our rejection of such an offer would amount to treason," Sadat told a Cairo meeting of Egyptian newspaper editors.

Sadat did not spell out the political price Egypt would be prepared to pay in return for such a withdrawal and reiterated his demand for limited Israeli withdrawals from Syria and Jordan as well as Egypt.

Ethiopia Fighting

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Ethiopia's military government rushed fresh tanks and troops to the northern province of Eritrea today in an attempt to smash a rebel encirclement of the capital city, Asmara.

Diplomats said a convoy of 50 tanks and armored personnel carriers and troop reinforcements were en route to Asmara to bolster 15,000 soldiers battling Eritrean secessionists in and around the city for the last three days.

The government used air strikes against guerrilla positions in Asmara Sunday for the first time. As the tanks rumbled north today, light and sporadic firing was reported from the capital.

The ruling military junta that seized power from Emperor Haile Selassie in September also said today it was taking over more than 60 companies.
